

Music Speaks

Michael Adler and Brad Green

By rivers wide or ocean
deep, in valleys green or mountain steep,
from open plains to snowy peaks,
when all words fail, still music speaks.

A thought alone is incomplete,
and spoken language is too weak.
When we can't find the words we seek,
when all words fail, still music speaks.

A song lives on when words depart;
none can compare with music's art.
A message words cannot impart
is heard when music moves the heart,
moves the heart.

A thought alone is incomplete,
and spoken language is too weak.
When we can't find the words we seek,
when all words fail, still music speaks.